

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF COWBOY PILOT

HAS NOT BEEN SIGHTED SINCE LEAVING PORT

Urban Diteman, Montana,
Starts For England In Tiniest Airplane

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(INS)—
Doubt over Urban F. Diteman's
chances of success in his daring
attempt at a solo trans-Atlantic flight was expressed here today as the hours passed without any
word of his being sighted.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon (10 a.
m., Eastern Standard time) no
word of any sort had been received
of the airman's progress. The air ministry told International News
Service that no news had been received, and a check-up of coast
stations along the English and Irish coasts revealed that the flier had not been seen.

FEAR GAS SHORTAGE
As the hour rapidly approached
when Diteman, through shortage
of fuel, must be forced to land,
hopes for his success waned. A gale was reported blowing up off
the Irish coast which furnished a new threat to successful completion of the daring flight.

It was pointed out that there is
a remote possibility that Diteman
may have crossed the coast-line
unobserved under cover of fog or clouds, and that he landed on some
out-of-the-way spot in the interior
of Ireland. In such an event, it might be several hours before news
was received of his landing.

In the open cockpit of the tiniest
plane over to essay a Trans-Atlantic flight, a grim-visaged airflier,
Urban F. Diteman, Jr., of Billings,
Mont., today was well out over the Atlantic. If all went well, in a thrilling race against death with fame as an alternative.

With an amazing display of nonchalance, with no previous announcement of his plans, and with no ostensible preparations, Dite-
man soared aloft from the Harbor
Grace airport at 12:15 p. m. yesterday and headed eastward over the broad Atlantic with London for his destination.

His single-motored, low winged
monoplane, the Golden Hind, carried 165 gallons of gasoline, hardly enough for only a fair sized flight
in an ordinary plane, but deemed sufficient to carry Diteman across
the Atlantic in his tiny craft.

GOOD WEATHER
Weather reports today indicated
that favorable conditions would aid
his progress on a good part of the journey, although fogs and squalls
were reported in his path at some points.

Diteman flew alone, without radio apparatus, and so far as is known, with none of the usual intricate instruments of navigation
used by trans-Atlantic fliers at his disposal.

When Diteman came here he let it be known that his mission
was to trace descendants of Sir
Francis Drake, from whom he claimed direct descent. In a gesture as of confirmation, he chartered his plane the Golden Hind after the famous Galleon in which Sir Francis roved the seven seas.

His departure, therefore, caused little stir. It was assumed he had accomplished his business and was simply bound for other parts.

But before leaving he left a
sealed note in the hands of airport
officials with instructions that it was not to be opened until after his departure.

It was this note that revealed
that he had actually left on a trans-Atlantic solo hop in a fashion more spectacular than the start of any ocean flight since Col. Charles
A. Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt field two years ago last
May.

In the note he revealed his destination, asked the officials to forward a package and two letters to his home in Montana. Optimistically, he asked that his tools be held for cabled instructions from London. He estimated that he would cross the Atlantic in 25
hours implying that the 165 gallons aboard his plane were more than enough for the trip. He apologized to residents of Harbor
Grace for his impromptu lies regarding his purpose here, saying
that although he actually was a descendant of Sir Francis, neither
his visit here nor his flight attempt had anything to do with that fact.

A former cow-puncher, gentleman rancher and dealer in cattle, Diteman has had little more than two years of flying experience.

HOOVER JOINS IN OHIO RIVER CELEBRATION

Arrives at Louisville at 4 p. m., To Join River Folk in Big Party

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT
HOOVER TO LOUISVILLE, KY., Oct. 23.—President Hoover was just floatin' down the river today.

Cut off, temporarily at least,
from the troubles of Washington and the burdens of the White house, the President of the United States reverted to just plain Herbert Hoover, the engineer, as the old stern-wheeler "Greenbrier" paddled down the Ohio today in the vanguard of "The Grand Fleet" which is celebrating the complete opening of a water roadway to the Mississippi.

Strung out behind the Greenbrier are the river craft of a dozen cities and towns that dot the Ohio river. Pittsburgh is represented, Huntington, too, and from Cincinnati and other towns along the meandering Ohio there are vessels enough to make a real fleet. The Greenbrier, carrying President Hoover and his immediate party, is the flagship of the river cavalcade.

Late this afternoon, they will tie up at Louisville, named for the exiled French king who travelled the same route a century ago and landed at the spot where the Kentucky metropolis now stands.
There tonight the president will celebrate with Ohio river folk,
from Pittsburgh to Cairo, the completion of the river's canalization,
and outline to them the waterways policies which he hopes to see fulfilled before the end of his administration. These policies embrace the linking up of the waterways of the middlewest with the railroads into a vast system of interstate communication and transportation such as the empire builders dreamed of but could not realize.

FLOATING ON RIVER

For today, however, the President was just floatin' down the river, travelling by easy stages between the bluffs of Kentucky and Indiana, red, brown and green in their autumnal dress.

On either side of the river the hills stretched away in undulating series of brilliant color which not even the most miserable weather of the fall season could dim. It was foggy and rainy, but the fog only softened the sharpness of the hills, and the rain only accentuated
the color of them.

This is the river folks' jubilee.
For years they have lived behind the turbid yellow waters that flow westward to the Mississippi, fleeing to the highlands in the spring and fall, but always returning to the fertile farmlands and ambitious towns that dot its shores.

The Ohio now has a nine foot channel from Pittsburgh to Cairo.
That means that it is now possible to freight a cargo from Pittsburgh to New Orleans, a 1000 miles down the Ohio and another thousands down the Mississippi. That may not mean much to the people of the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts but it means a lot to the fifteen millions of people who live in the great Mississippi Valley region.

And they are making the most of their celebration along the yellow Ohio. The crawling, ever-flowing stream is alive with craft, and throughout the night and this morning the hills on either side echoed to the jubilant blasts of steamboat whistles, bidding hail or farewell to the lumbering white paddler that carried the president.
Everybody on the river knows the cargo the Greenbrier is carrying,
and is paying appropriate respects
in noise.

SPLIT PARTY

So numerous is the party which President carried to this Ohio river jubilee that it was necessary

WEATHER WARNING

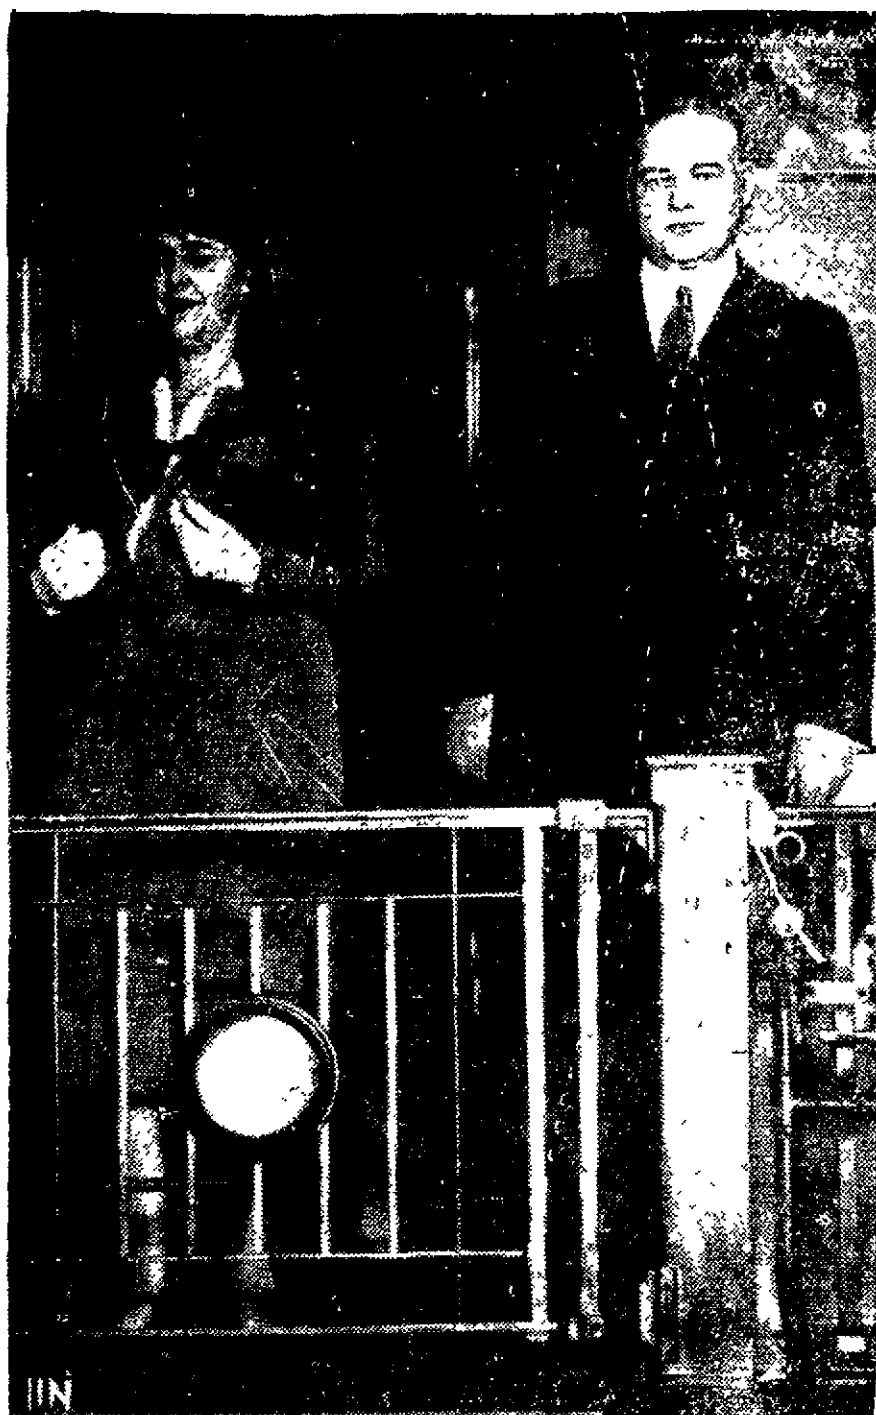

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 23.—(INS)—
A warning that temperatures in Ohio would drop to the freezing point tonight was issued today by H. H. Alexander, of the government weather bureau here.

Snow flurries will sweep across the northern section of the state, he predicted, and may even touch
the central and southern portions.

Alexander declared there would be little rain, though cloudy skies would prevail.

He said temperatures would drop to from 32 to 28 degrees tonight.

Thomas Edison, the noted inventor. After his Michigan visit a formal address will be made at Detroit after ceremonies re-enacting the inven-

Laboratory. The executive's program will carry him over 2,000 miles before he returns to Washington. Leaving Michigan he will visit Cincinnati, then board a boat down the Ohio for a stop at Madison, Ind., and on Wednesday will deliver his address at Louisville, Ky.

PEKING UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Battles Between Coolies and Troops Prevail in Large Region

LONDON, Oct. 23.—With the City of Peking under martial law, sporadic rioting between coolies
and Nationalist troops continued today, according to dispatches from the far East.

According to a dispatch to the Daily Telegraph, rioting was prevalent for hours throughout the city as a result of reorganization of the general labor federation.
Thousands of Chinese workmen, armed with bludgeons, attacked and commandeered 70 trolley-cars, riding madly through the streets.

Troops, firing guns loaded with blank cartridges and using bridge batts, charged into mobs attacking the headquarters of the tramworkers' union, dispersing them without serious casualties.

The police, however, found themselves unable to control the surging mobs parading the streets of the Chinese section, and martial law was put into effect. In spite of this, demonstrations continued, and all shops were closed in the native quarter.

Foreign legations were carefully guarded as precautionary measure.

Meanwhile, heavy fighting between the troops of General Feng Yu-Hsiang and Nationalist forces was reported in a Hankow dispatch to The Daily Mail. The fighting is centered about Cheng-Chow, which Feng and allied rebel leaders are attempting to capture as a prelude to an advance on Hankow.

A Peking message to The Daily
Mail declares that General Yen Hsi-Shan, governor of Shansi, is awaiting the outcome of the battle before launching his troops into the rebellion.

ARREST SPEAKMAN

George Speakman, Circleville, was arrested by Deputy Muller Fri-charging violation of parole. This is Speakman's second offense and according to law he will probably be sentenced to 30 days in jail.

JURY INDICTS SHOW OWNERS

Portsmouth Movie War Springs Anew When Secret Indictments Returned

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 23.—
The Sunday movie war here blazed up anew today when it was learned that the Scioto county grand jury had secretly indicted
Robert Risley and Frances Mac-Donald, on a charge of operating movie houses on Sunday.

First reports from the grand jury said that the deliberators had ignored the cases of the theater managers. The fact that the indictment were secret kept the news from being known until the men were arrested.

A group of ministers led the fight to close the picture shows on Sundays.

MacDonald and Risley have been arrested every Sunday for the past several months, but in most instances they were arraigned in municipal court and fined $50.

Both of the men furnished bond when arrested on the secret indictment. Date for their hearing and trial has not been set.

raced through the minds of prop-

of Mack's fruit store and the M

The first intimation that the

the city gas was escaping in great quantities somewhere.

JURY TO GET FALL CHARGE

Betting at Capitol Says Former Secretary Will Be Acquitted

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—This
afternoon, the fate of Albert B.
Fall, former Secretary of Interior,
will be placed in the hands of a jury.

Only four hours of argument by counsel remain before Justice William Hitz charges the four women
and eight men who have followed
the evidence, and they retire to decide whether the $100,000 Fall got
from E. L. Doheny, the oil magnate, was a bribe, as contended by the government, or a loan, as insisted by the defense.

By nightfall, the 68-year-old defendant, who has been daily pushed into court in a wheel chair under the care of a doctor and a nurse, should know the verdict.

BET ACQUITTAL

Betting around the court house,
especially in view of Fall's physical condition, leaned strongly to an acquittal, but the government's hopes for a conviction were bolstered somewhat when the judge
admitted as collateral evidence the story of Fall's other involvement
in the oil scandals—that with Harry F. Sinclair, now in District
jail.

Owen J. Roberts, powerful and vigorous special prosecutor from Philadelphia, will make his final
summation today after the defense
winds up its arguments in the first
hour of the session.

Arrangements have been made
to handle a capacity crowd of spectators.

Preceding him will be Mark B.
Thompson, of New Mexico, Fall's
personal attorney and life-long friend, and Milton J. Lambert, one of Washington's outstanding jury
lawyers and a member of defense
counsel. Thompson's pleas will be directed to the sympathies of the jurors; Lambert will stress the matter of reasonable doubt.

Speed Trap Operator Must Resign Or Face Charge of Fund Shortage

Open Letter From Ironton
Prosecutor Assails South-
point Mayor

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 23.—
Mayor James Cunningham, of Southpoint, near here, who is alleged to operate a "speed trap" in
his village, is faced with the alternatives of resigning or criminal court proceedings.

Prosecuting Attorney L. D. Andrews, of Ironton, demanded, in an open letter, that Cunningham
resign and he said that in case of a refusal he would use the findings of State Examiner C. W.
Boothe as a basis for court proceedings.

According to the prosecuting
attorney, Boothe's report discloses
that there is an alleged shortage
of $2,599 in Cunningham's books.
The mayor has repaid $338 of this amount.

The examiner also cited receipts
which were given to G. C. Pratt,
B. H. Thompson and John T. Mc-
Van, all of Huntington, W. Va.,
for $9.75 each. The men are said
to have paid these amounts as fines for speeding. The mayor's books show no record of the arrest or trial of these men, according to Andrews.

Southpoint is located on the Atlantic and Pacific highway, a short distance over the Lawrence county line.

The Portsmouth automobile
club led the fight against the alleged "speed trap" and it was reinforced by the automobile clubs

PROBE SMALL BLAZES HERE

State Fire Office Gets Infor-

For the past several days several special investigators from the office of Ray R. Gill, State Fire
Marshal, have been in Circleville
making investigations of a number of small mysterious fires that have occurred in Circleville. These investigators have been in close
touch with the Prosecuting Attorney, Emmitt L. Crist. It is said that certain information has been secured which may be submitted to the Grand Jury.

WILKS FINED, MERT PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Myrtle Moore and Joe Wilks who
were arrested Sunday by sheriff's authorities during an alleged party
were arraigned before Probate
Judge E. A. Brown Tuesday afternoon. Miss Moore, who was charged with illegal possession of liquor, pleaded not guilty and her bond was fixed at $200. In default of bond she was committed to the county jail.

Wilks who was charged with drunkenness pleaded guilty and
was fined $50 and costs and
stands committed to the county jail until fines and costs are paid.

of Ironton, Huntington and Cincinnati.

During the attempts of the clubs to break up the "speed
trap," Mayor Cunningham, arrested Cliff Murfin and two other members of the Portsmouth club
for erecting "speed trap" warning signs at the limits of South-
point. The men were held in jail for six hours. A grand jury refused to indict them.

Prosecutor Andrews gave Cunningham until Saturday to resign.

BUILD STATION FOR ALL BUSES

Scioto Valley Traction Company to Erect Terminal
In Columbus

Russell T. Johnson, president and general manager of the Scioto
Valley Railway and Power announced Tuesday an offer of his company to various independent
bus companies in Columbus for leasehold rights on the Scioto Valley property.

The announcement followed rumors that the Scioto Valley was contemplating the construction of
a bus terminal on its present property on the northeast corner of
Third and Rich-sts.

The improvement will be in keeping with the effort of the Columbus council to relieve congestion in downtown traffic resulting from the parking of buses on the streets.

The full statement of Mr. Johnson follows:

"As many proposed interurban
bus terminal projects have apparently failed to materialize, this company has offered to all motor
coach operating companies, station facilities at a price which, after much investigation, we find it
not in excess of what they have been paying."

Visions of Catastrophe Squelched At Cost of Gas Smelling Stranger

Work-men in N. Court-st Are Frightened at Report of Escaping City Gas

Visions of a big catastrophe
raced through the minds of proprietors of stores in the vicinity
of Mack's fruit store and the M.
& M. barber shop Tuesday morning, as the overpowering odor of gas suddenly pervaded that section of N. Court-st. Cellar windows were hastily thrown open,
and cigarettes were more hastily tramped upon.

The first intimation that the smell of gas was everywhere was brought by a tourist, who said he smelled gas all the way down Court-st. He said he thought that the city gas was escaping in great
quantities somewhere.

He parked in front of the barber shop, and Andrew Roundhouse of the Logan Gas Co., was called to save the city from destruction.

JURY TO GET FALL CHARGE

Betting at Capitol Says Former Secretary Will be Acquitted

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—This
afternoon, the fate of Albert B.
Fall, former Secretary of Interior,
will be placed in the hands of a
jury.

Only four hours of argument by
counsel remain before Justice William Hitz charges the four women
and eight men who have followed
the evidence, and they retire to decide whether the $100,000 Fall got
from E. L. Doheny, the oil mag-
nate, was a bribe, as contended by
the government, or a loan, as insisted by the defense.

By nightfall, the 68-year-old defendant, who has been daily pushed into court in a wheel chair under the care of a doctor and a
nurse, should know the verdict.

BET ACQUITTAL

Betting around the court house,
especially in view of Fall's physical condition, leaned strongly to
an acquittal, but the government's
hopes for a conviction were bol-
stered somewhat when the judge
admitted as collateral evidence the
story of Fall's other involvement
in the oil scandals—that with Harry F. Sinclair, now in District
jail.

Owen J. Roberts, powerful and
vigorous special prosecutor from Philadelphia, will make his final
summation today after the defense
winds up its arguments in the first
hour of the session.

Arrangements have been made
to handle a capacity crowd of spectators.

Preceding him will be Mark B.
Thompson, of New Mexico, Fall's
personal attorney and life-long
friend, and Milton J. Lambert, one
of Washington's outstanding jury
lawyers and a member of defense
counsel. Thompson's pleas will be directed to the sympathies of the jurors; Lambert will stress the
matter of reasonable doubt.

Speed Trap Operator Must Resign Or Face Charge of Fund Shortage

Open Letter From Ironton
Prosecutor Assails South-
point Mayor

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 23.—
Mayor James Cunningham, of Southpoint, near here, who is alleged to operate a "speed trap" in
his village, is faced with the alternatives of resigning or criminal
court proceedings.

Prosecuting Attorney L. D. An-
drews, of Ironton, demanded, in
an open letter, that Cunningham
resign and he said that in case of
a refusal he would use the findings of State Examiner C. W.
Boothe as a basis for court proceedings.

According to the prosecuting
attorney, Boothe's report discloses
that there is an alleged shortage
of $2,599 in Cunningham's books.
The mayor has repaid $338 of this amount.

The examiner also cited receipts
which were given to G. C. Pratt,
B. H. Thompson and John T. Mc-
Van, all of Huntington, W. Va.,
for $9.75 each. The men are said
to have paid these amounts as
fines for speeding. The mayor's
books show no record of the arrest or trial of these men, according to Andrews.

Southpoint is located on the Atlantic and Pacific highway, a
short distance over the Lawrence
county line.

The Portsmouth automobile
club led the fight against the alleged "speed trap" and it was reinforced by the automobile clubs
of Ironton, Huntington and Cincinnati.

During the attempts of the
clubs to break up the "speed
trap," Mayor Cunningham arrested Cliff Murfin and two other members of the Portsmouth club
for erecting "speed trap" warning signs at the limits of South-
point. The men were held in jail
for six hours. A grand jury refused to indict them.

Prosecutor Andrews gave Cunningham until Saturday to resign.

PROBE SMALL BLAZES HERE

For the past several days several special investigators from the office of Ray R. Gill, State Fire
Marshal, have been in Circleville
making investigations of a number of small mysterious fires that
have occurred in Circleville. These investigators have been in close
touch with the Prosecuting Attorney, Emmitt L. Crist. It is said
that certain information has been secured which may be submitted
to the Grand Jury.

WILKS FINED, MERT PLEADS NOT GUILTY

were arrested Sunday by sheriff's
authorities during an alleged party
were arraigned before Probate
Judge E. A. Brown Tuesday afternoon. Miss Moore who was charged with illegal possession of
liquor pleaded not guilty and her
bond was fixed at $200. In default of bond she was committed
to the county jail.

Wilks who was charged with
drunkenness pleaded guilty and
was fined $50 and costs, and
stands committed to the county

BUILD STATION FOR ALL BUSES

Scioto Valley Traction Company to Erect Terminal
In Columbus

Russell T. Johnson, president
and general manager of the Scioto
Valley Railway and Power announced Tuesday an offer of his company to various independent
bus companies in Columbus for
leasehold rights on the Scioto Valley property.

The announcement followed rumors that the Scioto Valley was contemplating the construction of
a bus terminal on its present property on the northeast corner of
Third and Rich-sts.

The improvement will be in keeping with the effort of the Columbus council to relieve congestion in downtown traffic resulting
from the parking of buses on the streets.

The full statement of Mr. John-
son follows:

"As many proposed interurban
bus terminal projects have apparently failed to materialize, this
company has offered to all motor
coach operating companies, station facilities at a price which, after much investigation, we find it
not in excess of what they have
been paying."

HAS NOT BEEN SIGHTED SINCE LEAVING PORT

Urban Diteman, Montana,
Starts For England In Tiniest Airplane

LONDON, Oct. 23—(INS)—
Doubt over Urban F. Diteman's
chances of success in his daring
attempt at a solo trans-Atlantic
flight was expressed here today as
the hours passed without any
word of his being sighted.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon (10 a.
m., Eastern Standard time) no
word of any sort had been received
of the airman's progress. The air ministry told International News
Service that no news had been received, and a check-up of coast
stations along the English and Irish coasts revealed that the
flier had not been seen.

As the hour rapidly approached
when Diteman, through shortage
of fuel, must be forced to land,
hopes for his success waned. A
gale was reported blowing up off
the Irish coast which furnished a
new threat to successful completion of the daring flight.

It was pointed out that there is
a remote possibility that Diteman
may have crossed the coast-line
unobserved under cover of fog or
clouds, and that he landed on some
out-of-the-way spot in the interior
of Ireland. In such an event, it might be several hours before news
was received of his landing.

In the open cockpit of the tiniest
plane over to essay a Trans-Atlantic
flight, a grim-visaged six-footer,
Urban F. Diteman, Jr., of Billings,
Mont., today was well out over the Atlantic, if all went well, in a
thrilling race against death—with
fame as an alternative.

With an amazing display of
nonchalance, with no previous announcement of his plans, and with no ostensible preparations, Dite-
man soared aloft from the Harbor
Grace airport at 12:15 p. m. yesterday and headed eastward over the broad Atlantic with London for his destination.

His single-motored, low winged
monoplane, the Golden Hind, carried 165 gallons of gasoline, hardly
enough for only a fair sized flight
in an ordinary plane, but deemed
sufficient to carry Diteman across
the Atlantic in his tiny craft.

GOOD WEATHER

Weather reports today indicated
that favorable conditions would aid
his progress on a good part of the
journey, although fogs and squalls
were reported in his path at some points.

Diteman flew alone, without radio apparatus, and, so far as is known, with none of the usual intricate instruments of navigation
used by trans-Atlantic fliers at his disposal.

When Diteman came here head-
let it be known that his mission
was to trace descendants of Sir
Francis Drake, from whom he claimed direct descent. In a gesture as of confirmation, he christened his plane the Golden Hind after the famous Galleon in which
Sir Francis roved the seven seas.

His departure, therefore, caused
little stir. It was assumed he had accomplished his business and was simply bound for other parts.

But before leaving he left a
sealed note in the hands of airport
officials with instructions that it
was not to be opened until after
his departure.

It was this note that revealed
that he had actually left on a
trans-Atlantic solo hop in a fashion more spectacular than the start of any ocean flight since Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt field two years ago last
May.

In the note he revealed his destination, asked the officials to forward a package and two letters to
his home in Montana. Optimistically, he asked that his tools be
held for cabled instructions from London. He estimated that he would cross the Atlantic in 25
hours implying that the 165 gallons aboard his plane were more than enough for the trip. He apologized to residents of Harbor
Grace for his impromptu lies regarding his purpose here, saying
that although he actually was a
tempt had anything to do with that fact.

A former cow-puncher, gentle-
man rancher and dealer in cattle,
Diteman has had little more than
two years of flying experience.

JIMMY DYKES SAYS ATHLETICS STOLE SIGNALS IN BIG SERIES

Explains That Baserunner Got Signals Then Broadcasted to Batter What the Pitch Was Going to be—Walsh Ridicules Idea Saying It Is An Old Trick

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Oct. 23—It's out at last. The Philadelphia Athletics didn't win the world series of 1929. They stole it—and not from under the pillow slip, either. They stole it from the "pillow" of the rival catcher, Zack Taylor.

Jimmy Dykes, the third baseman, found himself among friends last night and told all about it at a dinner given in his honor in good, old Upper Darby, Pa., the home of his youth, according to James, they simply got a man on and he promptly intercepted the catcher's sign, which in turn was passed on to the hitter, who thereupon batted or bunted one to distant parts, winning the ball game. Thus, the 1929 version of villainy on baseball's backstairs—a stolen series.

CHILICOTHE MAN COULD NOT EAT SLEEP OR WORK

But Spinago Showed Him The Way To Health, Strength And Happiness After All Others Had Failed

Spinago, the friend of the sufferer, the enemy of pain, daily adds to the list of those who have their super tonic to thank for health and happiness regained. Every mail brings letters of praise from those who considered their cases hopeless until Spinago came along. Those druggists who distribute this master medicine are deluged daily by those anxious to tell what Spinago has done for them as well as by those seeking relief from stubborn ailments. Witness the case of Otis Lambert who resides in Chillicothe at 266 Western Avenue. He speaks as follows:

MR. OTIS LAMBERT

"For a long, long time, I doctor'd continually and took one medicine after another in a vain effort to regain my health which had been driven away by indigestion, constipation, nervousness and liver troubles. I couldn't eat; I couldn't sleep; I couldn't work. After every meal I went through great agony even though I ate only the simplest of foods. Refuse and waste matter piled up within my body causing me to lose all my pep and energy and to experience a tired worn-out feeling all the time.

After trying countless remedies one after another, with no success, and after being forced to give up my work, I realized that something had to be done, and done quickly. Luckily, I just heard of Spinago just at this time, and decided to give it a trial. The results were immediate and pleasing.

Three bottles worked wonders for me—put my digestion back in shape, perfectly regulated my bowels and steadied my nerves. I can eat anything now without fear of suffering; all waste is immediately eliminated from my body; I can sleep well and am able to do my day's work without a sign of exhaustion. Truly, Spinago has done much for me and I am eternally grateful.

Spinago is sold and guaranteed by The Mykrantz Pharmacy, 107 N. Court St. where many call daily to express their thanks for its assistance. Spinago is also sold by all other good druggists in this section.

the man before he got on? Well, anyhow, they had no trouble with Taylor. He was all for open covenants, openly arrived at or something. For instance, in the third game they got plenty of men on. The trouble was that they couldn't get them off again or, rather, in. Maybe Mr. Taylor was feeling a little secretive that day. If he wasn't more surely James doesn't mean to say that the Athletics couldn't hit what they knew was coming. And in the fifth game, Bishop was on first base when Haas hit his home run. Does James mean us to infer that Bishop picked up the sign from the first base?

If he did, Mr. Taylor was using no ordinary signs. He was using the general electric system.

At that, James interested me strangely when he asserted that they didn't watch for signs in the fourth game. Had Mr. Taylor's guileless behavior wearied them? Or were they carried away with a sense of self sufficiency, causing them to decide to do it the hard way this time? I don't think James ought to confess without taking us into his complete confidence. He should have told us why, without bothering about signs, the Athletics did more hitting this game than in any other during the series.

AN OLD STORY
Frankly, James tells us an interesting story but it is old stuff. Signs have been stolen since the days when ball players were long of hair and short of breath. Dan Murphy and Harry Davis used to steal them for the old Athletics and they won. Then Connie Mack sold the outfit, almost in toto. Davis and Murphy continued to pick up the signs until they got granulated eyelids and what happened? Roughly speaking, nothing. In fact, nothing can happen unless going to throw a fast ball.

Maybe the Cubs picked up a few signs from Cochrane during the series. They probably were told by the base runner that Grove was going to throw a fast ball.

As for the hard feeling James talks about, this was manifestly concealed. The two clubs didn't fraternize. But neither did they appear to snarl. However, if they did, I don't mind professing to be delighted. Baseball has so little time nowadays for the man who can't snarl pleasantly.

All six of these boys like to throw gloves, and with Eddie Wagner, youthful Chillicothe phenom, carrying the proverbial chip on his broad shoulder, Mason Buskirk is going to be in there throwing Wagner everything he has in the direction.

150 ATTEND TAX MEETING

More than 150 persons attended the meeting held at Memorial Hall Tuesday evening to hear the amendment to the Tax law which will be voted on in November argued pro and con, but when this same crowd left the Memorial Hall they didn't know much more than they did before they entered.

A. P. Sandies, Columbus, argued against the amendment and W. L. Crooks, Worthington O., explained the merits of the new proposed tax law.

C. A. Dyer, Columbus, vice chairman of the All Ohio Tax League, who was supposed to argue with Sandies on the law failed to appear, and Crooks, a spectator at the meeting, volunteered to try to tell what he knew of the amendment.

BRIAND DENIES NEW CABINET

Expects to Take Position as Foreign Minister in New Government

PARIS, Oct. 23—While President Gaston Doumergue consulted political leaders today regarding the possible complexion of a new cabinet, made necessary by the fall of Aristide Briand's government yesterday, Briand definitely stated he would not attempt to form another cabinet.

Briand's statement checked a strong feeling in many quarters in view of the small margin of 11 votes by which he lost a vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies, he would form another cabinet.

Regardless of who heads the new government, it is considered likely Briand will at least accept the post of Foreign Minister.

By so doing, he will be able to continue the foreign policy of his last, and incidentally, his government and thus prevent any radical changes in France's attitude on two problems of international importance, reparations, and naval disarmament.

Soon after President Doumergue began his consultations with party leaders this morning, numerous names were tossed about as possibilities for the premiership.

Prominently mentioned among these were Andre Tardieu, Minister of the Interior under Briand, Senator Theodore Steeg, former Minister of the Interior under Millerand; Senator E. Ienne Clementel.

former Minister of Finance under Herriot, Joseph Caillaux, former Minister of Finance under Briand, and Edouard Herriot, former premier, and leader of the left wing.

It is suggested by many of the political leaders a temporary cabinet be formed until former Premier Raymond Poincare who was operated upon Monday, is able to return to public life.

Sudden Change of Wind Saved Chicago From Lashing by Winds and Rain

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (INS)—A sudden change of wind saved Chicago today from further battering by the most terrific storm that has raged on Lake Michigan in 37 years, sweeping it eastward towards Cleveland, Buffalo, Erie and ports on the eastern lakes.

Full violence of the disturbance was expected to break today over Lakes Huron and Erie, according to weather reports.

Swollen to its highest level yet on record, Lake Michigan all yesterday and last night poured gigantic waves against its 200-mile western shoreline.

Tuesday evening a regular meeting of the Modern Woodmen of America basketball team was organized.

The material thus far for the team is some of the best in the county and these bucket shooters will undoubtedly give a good account of themselves on the floor during the basketball season.

The team is at present in need of games and it will accept games with any team in Central Ohio. Any team wishing to schedule a game should get in touch with Manager Reynold Greene immediately to set a date.

Slow, but Steady Growth

The diary of a student of Upsala university, Sweden, written during the latter half of the Fifteenth century, was recently found in the library of that university. Astronomy was the main study and the text was written by Sacerdosco. In the Fifteenth century Upsala had six professors and 100 students; to day there are 200 professors and instructors and 3,000 students.

GOOD MATCHES AT THEATRE

Aronson Schedules Three Crack Bouts for Grand This Evening

Eddie Kid Wagner, Chillicothe against Mason Buskirk, Circleville. Four rounds at 135 pounds.

Kid Culp, Circleville, against Lou Jones, Ashville. Four rounds at 135 pounds.

Dud Stout, Circleville, against Kid Beck, Circleville. Four rounds. That's the layout for the fight card at the Grand theater this evening which should provide more socks and busts than any scrap of this season, or any other for that matter. All six of these boys like to throw gloves, and with Eddie Wagner, youthful Chillicothe phenom, carrying the proverbial chip on his broad shoulder, Mason Buskirk is going to be in there throwing Wagner everything he has in the direction.

The curtain goes up at 6:30 and the show will start immediately after that. The regular picture will precede the boxing matches.

150 ATTEND TAX MEETING

More than 150 persons attended the meeting held at Memorial Hall Tuesday evening to hear the amendment to the Tax law which will be voted on in November argued pro and con, but when this same crowd left the Memorial Hall they didn't know much more than they did before they entered.

A. P. Sandles, Columbus, argued against the amendment and W. L. Crooks, Worthington O., explained the merits of the new proposed tax law.

C. A. Dyer, Columbus, vice chairman of the All Ohio Tax League, who was supposed to argue with Sandles on the law failed to appear, and Crooks, a spectator at the meeting, volunteered to try to tell what he knew of the amendment.

BRIAND DENIES NEW CABINET

Expects to Take Position as Foreign Minister in New Government

PARIS, Oct. 23.—While President Gaston Doumergue consulted political leaders today regarding the possible complexion of a new cabinet, made necessary by the fall of Aristide Briand's government yesterday, Briand definitely stated he would not attempt to form another cabinet.

Briand's statement checked a strong feeling in many quarters in view of the small margin of 11 votes by which he lost a vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies, he would form another cabinet.

Regardless of who heads the new government, it is considered likely Briand will at least accept the post of Foreign Minister.

By so doing, he will be able to continue the foreign policies of his last, and incidentally, his government and thus prevent any radical changes in France's attitude on two problems of international importance, reparations and naval disarmament.

Soon after President Doumergue began his consultations with party leaders this morning, numerous names were tossed about as possibilities for the premiership.

Prominently mentioned among these were: Andre Tardieu, Minister of the Interior under Briand; Senator Theodore Steeg, former Minister of the Interior under Millerand; Senator Etienne Clementel,

former Minister of Finance under Herriot; Joseph Caillaux, former Minister of Finance under Briand; and Edouard Herriot, former premier, and leader of the left wing. It is suggested by many of the political leaders a temporary cabinet be formed until former Premier Raymond Poincare, who was operated upon Monday, is able to return to public life.

GREAT LAKES AREA SWEEPED BY STORMS

Sudden Change of Wind Saved Chicago From Lashing by Winds and Rain

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—(INS)—A sudden change of wind saved Chicago today from further battering by the most terrific storm that has raged on Lake Michigan in 37 years, sweeping it eastward towards Cleveland, Buffalo, Erie and ports on the eastern lakes.

Full violence of the disturbance was expected to break today over Lakes Huron and Erie, according to weather reports.

Swollen to the highest level yet on record, Lake Michigan all yesterday and last night poured gigantic waves against it's 200-mile western shoreline.

In the Chicago district tons of water hurled onto the land battered huge concrete seawalls to pieces. Heavy cement bulwarks were crumbled by the waves. Pavements along the city's outer drives were ripped away.

The wind at times reached a 53-mile an hour velocity. The first snow of the season began last night and continued today in the Chicago area.

Two seamen were rescued from indetermiately.

Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing," and the demand for Vicks has grown until it is necessary to again raise the figures in the famous slogan. There are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

CHECK BUICK'S CHASSIS - note its distinctive construction .. then you'll know why more than 2,000,000 people have bought BUICKS

The world-famous Buick chassis and Buick's smart new Bodies by Fisher! An unrivaled combination! Providing the highest degree of motor car performance and all-round motoring satisfaction, over the greatest number of miles!

The more thoroughly you compare Buick with other cars, the more clearly you will understand why more than 2,000,000 people have bought Buicks—why men and women are buying from two to five times as many Buicks as any other automobile priced above $1200—and why they have purchased more Buicks during the few weeks this brilliant new car has been on the market than in any like period in Buick history.

See the new Buicks and arrange to buy one. Six of the 14 luxurious body types, incorporating all the famous Buick superiorities, are available at prices ranging from $1225 to $1295, f. o. b. factory. All available on the extremely liberal General Motors Time Payment Plan.

Buick's 99-horsepower Valve-in-Head engine is the most powerful engine of its size in the world. It is famous, too, for unrivaled smoothness, economy and stamina. It incorporates such marked engineering advancements as counterweighted crankshaft with torsion balancer, carburetor heat control, positive pressure gas pump, and triple seals against wear.

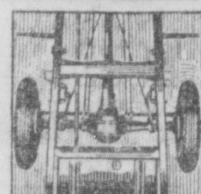

Buick's new frictionless steering gear imparts matchless steering ease throughout the entire turning range, while the new Buick Road Shock Eliminator absolutely prevents transmission of road jolts and jars to the driver's arms. Twin features which make a tremendous contribution to driving ease and roadability.

Buick's Controlled Servo Enclosed Mechanical Brakes provide the most perfect control ever devised for any automobile. They are smooth, sure, silent in operation, and achieve positive results with minimum pedal pressure. And because they are enclosed—fully protected against dust, dirt and water—they insure maximum braking efficiency in any weather.

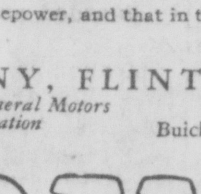

Buick's famous multiple-disc clutch, too, reveals marked superiorities. In addition to being far sturdier than those of conventional design, it imparts exceptional smoothness, due to its special facing which insures gentle, gradual engagement of the driving and driven surfaces.

New, longer rear springs, in conjunction with four new Lovejoy Duodraulic Shock Absorbers, impart a superlative degree of riding comfort. These two vital comfort factors work together in perfect harmony to check both bound and rebound over the roughest roads.

Buick's famous torque tube serves two vitally important functions. It not only carries the driving thrust, leaving the rear springs free to cushion the car's progress, but also forms a major unit of the Buick chassis seal. Every moving part of the Buick chassis—from fan to rear wheels—is fully protected against dust, dirt and water, assuring maximum operating efficiency in any weather.

*The engine in the 124- and 132-inch Buicks develops 99 horsepower, and that in the 118-inch Buicks 80½ horsepower.

other four. Only his wife knew of his plans to make the flight.
Eleven years ago the Englishmen, Alcock and Brown, made the first flight across the Atlantic on the same course Diteman apparently is following—the shortest "Great Circle" hop of approximately 2,000 miles from Newfoundland to England.
The Golden Hind is a machine so small that it could easily nestle under one of the great wings of the huge, tri-motored type of plane used by Commander Byrd and Amelia Earhart in their trans-Atlantic flights.
Its wing-spread is 32 feet, six inches. It weighs only 771 pounds. Because of its light weight, the 165 gallons carried should give the plane a cruising range far in excess of the distance to be covered.
Diteman's plane has a top speed of 125 miles an hour. Its normal cruising speed is between 80 and 90 miles an hour.
If he is able to maintain an average speed of 80 miles an hour, it was estimated that he will have an adequate margin of safety with the fuel he has on hand.
At that rate, he should also reach London in about 25 hours or at about one o'clock this afternoon, just as he predicted in the note he left behind.
All England eagerly and hopefully look forward today to the arrival of Urban F. Diteman, the Montana cattle man, who is now believed to be well beyond the mid-Atlantic on his solo hop from Harbor Grace, N. F.
However, at a late hour this morning there were no reports from any sources of his progress across the Atlantic.

This was not regarded as being out of the way inasmuch as Diteman carried no radio by which passing ships could communicate with him and also because of the fact that no ship could be expected to sight his plane in the dark.
The English populace is intrigued by the daring flight of the American not only owing to the sporting chance his taking in using the smallest of all Trans-Atlantic planes, but also because of the claims he has made to direct descent from Sir Francis Drake, famous leader of Queen Elizabeth's Armadas.

To all intents and purposes it is a presidential parade on the broad and yellow bosom of the Ohio, with sternwheeler taking the place of automobiles.
In order that the engineer president might see the whole development of the river, and in particular the three locks between Cincinnati and Louisville, the boats tied up last night along the Indiana shore, thus enabling them to make almost the entire trip by daylight.

Mr. Hoover was keenly interested in the locks and the other devices which the combined efforts of the army engineers and the business interests of the river country have erected to facilitate travel. At Fernwood, where the first lock was encountered, he left the Greenbrier for a personal inspection of the tour. He plied the engineers with questions, and had them demonstrate several times the model lock erected there.
The governors of the two states, Kentucky and Indiana, will welcome Mr. Hoover to the river country today. A stop will be made at Madison, Indiana, today for Governor Harry Leslie to greet the Presidential party, and tonight in Louisville Governor Flem D. Sampson will speak Kentucky's welcome to the first president the Blue Grass state has entertained in years.
ARRIVE AT 4 P. M.
The Greenbrier is due to arrive in Louisville at 4 p. m. The President will be met by a small reception committee, and then drive across the new bridge to the Indiana side, returning to Louisville for dinner and the speech, which will be delivered in the open air from the stern of the vessel, carried him downstream. The audience will be backed on the terraced river front.
Late tonight, Mr. Hoover will board his special train for the return trip to Washington, arriving there late tomorrow.
Last night was a rough night on the Ohio. The river is high, and a strong October gale whipped the yellow waters to waves of ocean-like proportions. Spray from the paddies drove constantly across the top-decks, the paddle steamers, before they tied up, and the rain fell incessantly. Fog horns boomed intermittently. Mr. Hoover seemed rather to enjoy it.

LOBBY INQUIRY TURNS TOWARD SUGAR TARIFF

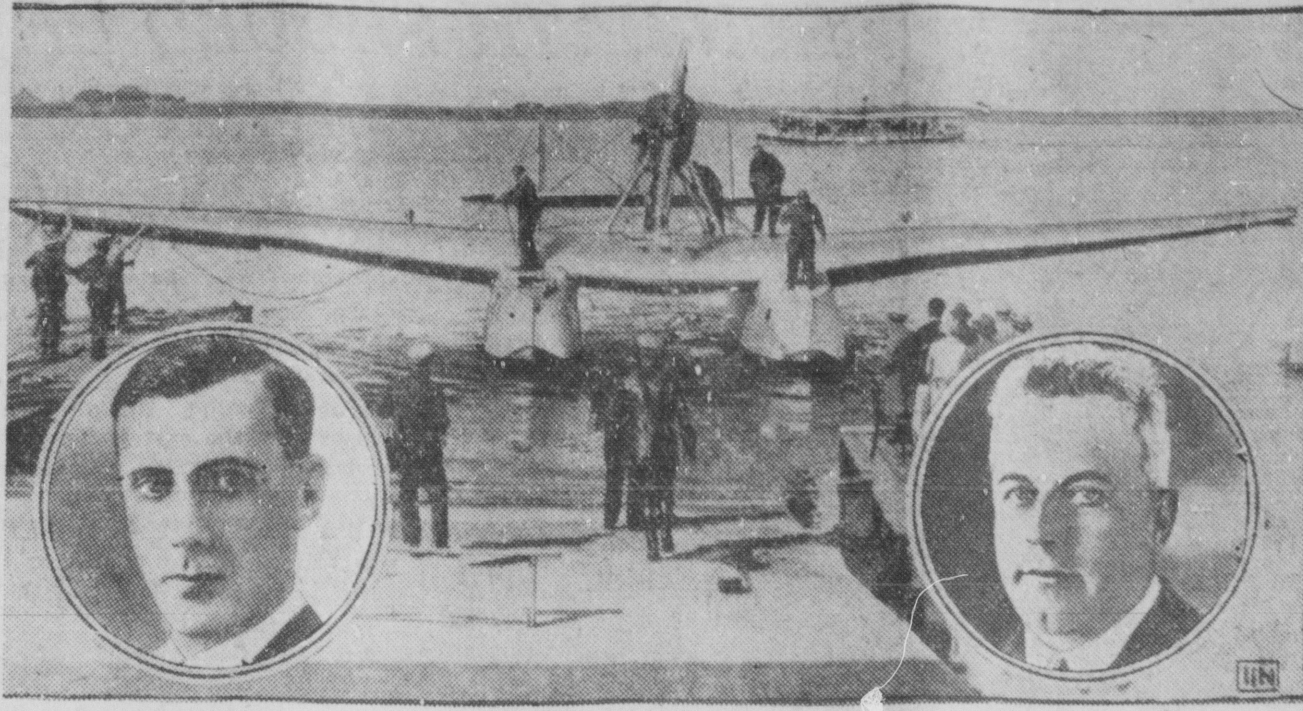

Investigate Cuba, Philippines And Porto Rican American Interests

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—A brief inquiry by the Senate's lobby investigators into a "leak" in the secret tariff sessions or the senate finance committee today will be followed by resumption of the sugar investigation.

The Senate lobby committee, having learned that American beet sugar growing interests spent nearly $500,000 here in the last six years seeking to influence Congress and public opinion in favor of higher tariffs, will turn to the opposing side—the Cuban cane sugar interests. H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba company was under subpoena, to tell what his organization spent, fighting the American interests and in seeking lower sugar rates.

The sugar inquiry will be as far reaching as any undertaken by the committee. After getting the Cuban background, the investigators will turn their spotlight on the activities of Hawaiian, Philippine and Porto Rican interests and then probably return to individual American concerns. QUESTION EYANSON

In the meantime, the committee will clear up a few loose ends in the amazing activities of Charles L. Eyanson, Connecticut manufacturer's expert, who slipped into two secret sessions of the Senate Finance Committee.

Eyanson was called back to the witness stand, along with J. E. Wuichet, a subordinate employee of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association.

Wuichet was to be questioned about a probable "leak" in the finance committee's secret sessions. The investigators obtained a copy of a memorandum he sent Eyanson, relating how he had told Connecticut manufacturers that Bingham had met stiff opposition from Senators Smoot (R) of Utah, Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, and Edge (R) of N. J., in retaining the shotgun barrel rate at 10 per cent ad valorem.

Frederick Meisnest, a former tariff expert now employed by the Atlantic Coast Fisheries Corporation, also will be questioned about his relations with Eyanson. Edward G. Cooley, representing the Massachusetts Fisheries Association, testified Meisnest told him Eyanson had tremendous influence on Bingham and other tariff-makers.

Senator Walsh (D) of Montana, conducts most of the examination of witnesses. John Holland, attorney, has been engaged to gather information for the inquiry. Holland served as Walsh's aide in the investigation of the Teapot Dome Oil scandals.

MORE ROADS FOR MORE CARS

In France, Alfred P. Sloan predicts continuation of automobile manufacture in America at the present pace indefinitely. The day before the American Automobile Association, in an appeal for a new national road building drive estimated the American registration of cars and trucks at 35,000,000 by 1940.

Allowing for the increase since last year's figures, probably 24,000,000 machines are in use in the United States now. The figure of 35,000,000 by 1940 means replacement of virtually all these 24,000,000 and the addition of 11,000,000 more. Although part of the foreign demand no doubt will be met through plants operated abroad, the manufacture here of still other huge fleets of machines for export nevertheless will continue.

As Mr. Sloan says, fluctuations of output from time to time are inevitable; but that in no way weakens the accumulation of evidence indicating a decade of manufacturing expansion in the United States equalling, and by all probabilities, far surpassing the decade now coming to an end.

The arguments both for the future of automobile manufacturing in America, and for persistent highway and street development in the country and in the cities, are overwhelmingly convincing.

AVOIDING BOOKKEEPING

First Assistant Postmaster General Coleman is quoted as saying: "We carry government department mail free because it is much more economical to do so than to impose a bookkeeping department overhead to record the mail sent by each government bureau and charge for the same."

Well, that is about as silly a reason as any that has been given by the politically-managed postoffice department. It is just the sort of reason one would expect from a department that changes its executives every few years, putting in charge men who have had no experience in postal affairs and neglecting the knowledge and advice of those who have handled mail for most of their adult years.

As a matter of fact, the postoffice department has done just that, whenever some committee of congress has demanded figures on how much free mail is being carried for government departments. It weighs the mail for a time, charging it to the various departments and bureaus by a bookkeeping system, and thus it discovers what this free service amounts to.

Some day a genius may arise who will suggest that the way to ascertain this cost without imposing a bookkeeping department overhead will be to abolish the frank and make every government officer, department and bureau put postage stamps on its mail. That is what every business house does, and there is no good reason why the government should not.

Novel Ice-Breaker

The fact that black absorbs the sun's rays, and holds the heat ennobled the captain of a steamer ice-bound in an Alaskan lake to extricate his ship. He had a long strip of refuse oil and lampblack, 40 feet wide, scummed across the frozen lake. In a short time the strip had softened sufficiently to allow the steamer to break through.

BREAKING THE SHACKLES

Blue Blood And Red

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Eddie Regan, once a member of a New York gang, has broken away and gone to Virginia, where he befriends Penfield Partridge, who dies and leaves all his possessions to Eddie. Eddie had been in love with Bernice Veressi, "gang girl," but all thought of her is lost when he meets and falls in love with Marian Thorndike. Marian is engaged to Tom Freeman. Freeman and Eddie dislike each other, and Eddie, discouraged, goes to Richmond, where he meets Mike Arno, a former member of the gang, who tries to persuade him to return to New York and Bernice. Eddie refuses and returns to his farm. He goes to dinner at the Thorndike home, and Mr. Thorndike questions him as to his past. Bernice Veressi comes to Eddie's home, and informs him she has come to stay. He tells her it is impossible, and she agrees to leave. He is escorting her back to the village when he comes face to face with Marian and her father.

Now Go On with the Story

CHAPTER XLII.
"If you were a friend of mine," he reminded her, "you'd let me work out my problems in my own way. It's a lot easier for you to be a sweetheart than it is to be a friend, isn't it?"

"I suppose so," Bernice admitted. "I'm trying to forget for a minute that I love you and look at it like a friend. I am your kind of a girl—even if you don't know it now. You're my kind of a man. We speak the same kind of language. What do I care whether we marry or not? I could make you happy and you could make me happy. Do you think I'm crazy?"

"I think you're mistaken, that's all."

"To me it's as plain as day that you are the mistaken one."

Her eyes pleaded.

"You're in trouble but you don't know it. I'm not going to run out on you—I'm going to stick around and see what I can do even if it does hurt your feelings a little bit."

"I suppose you're going to explain all that to the people in the hotel."

Bernice shrugged her shoulders in her slightly reserved manner.

"At the hotel I'll say I'm just taking a vacation in the country. Maybe I can hire a car and drive around in the afternoon."

"How long do you expect to keep this up?"

Again she shrugged.

"Till one or the other of us finds out the truth, the real truth."

Eddie knew with all his heart that he could tell her the entire truth then; that she could say for ever, but his love was irrevocably Marian Thorndike's.

There was nothing more he could say, nothing more he could do.

Returning home he was filled with dismal forebodings and the black face of old Tobie, too, was somber with deep intuitive misgivings.

He went into the house and sat motionless a long time trying to solve the most difficult problem his life had so far encountered.

It was characteristic of the old

Negro that he asked no questions of Eddie. Silently he placed the dinner on the broad mahogany table, and lit the candles in their silver sticks.

Sitting alone in the spacious dining room at the board large enough to accommodate a whole family, Eddie looked at the empty chairs beside him and shook his head. Somewhere there was a waste, a loss—the whole house with its deserted rooms seemed to yearn for the tenancy of a living, a family life.

The food before Eddie was scarcely touched. The strange feeling came over him that he was only in temporary possession of the whole establishment. Despite his objections to everything that Bernice Veressi had said—his repudiation of all she represented—a shadowy doubt began to grow in his mind as to his position. Was it possible, after all, that he was out of place here?

Maybe she was right—maybe it was hopeless to rebuild his life in correspondence with the lives of these people down here. Their viewpoint, traditions, customs, that his neighbors had been absorbing from birth—tricks of thought and conduct that no outsider, perhaps could ever quite master.

It was easy, natural, for him to look at life with New York's eyes, but everybody around him would have a different slant at things.

Even Marian—were their viewpoints, really, at all similar? Even if she married him—the odds were against him—would they be happy after the first thrills were off?

Bernice had said it would be a prolonged battle with Marian trying to make him over into her idea of what a man should be.

The sudden thought came to Eddie that, in fact, Marian had already attempted something of the kind. She had spoken of her disapproval of his ambition, his standing. He had worked until his hands were blistered, and Bernice had looked him only to an utter laborer.

Somewhere she saw a lack of worth in him, but she did not have the ability to point out any specific part of progress. Merely, she had expressed dissatisfaction, had made him skeptical of himself.

There was no solution for that sort of thing. It wouldn't get any place. Had not this been, already, the sowing of the first seeds of unhappiness? What sort of harvest could they expect to reap?

Tobie, with his lugubrious face, came into the room and began removing dishes from the table. Somehow, it seemed to Eddie, there was a stubborn silence about the old Negro that he was akin to sultriness. He had a feeling that Tobie, too, was beginning to disapprove of him. Even an old black man, unable to read or write, was able to sense something basically wrong. . . . was able to detect the cord of disharmony that Bernice Veressi had struck.

"What's the matter with you, Tobie?" Eddie demanded, impatiently.

"Nuffin', suh."

"Don't hand me that—you are sulking. What's on your mind?"

Tobie paused, stood awkwardly with a plate in his hand.

"Ah jes' feels unhappy today suh. 'Tis de weathah, mebbe. Storm clouds banking up in the west."

"You're not worrying about the weather," Eddie said, dependently. "What was the matter with that young lady who came here to see me? Why didn't you like her?"

"Ah ain't sed nary word agin her."

"Your face is a foot long! A person would think that I had been getting away with murder or something around this house—from the way you're acting. I couldn't help it, could I?"

Eddie heard his own voice rising almost in anger. "Strange. . . . I tell you I couldn't help it."

The black face seemed in capable of any changing expression.

"Tain't none of my business suh."

"As long as I stay here and you keep working for me, anything that happens around here concerns you—and don't you forget it. I won't have you blaming me for things I can't help."

"Ah don't blame you, suh."

"What's the matter with you then?"

The old, yellowed eyes rolled slightly. "Whut kin Ah say, suh? Ah jes' an old Nigger. From de time I was a little boy Ah ain't knowed no othah home. I beer hoping, Mistah Regan, dat you would git yo'self married and set de down. Yo' kin count on me for de rest of mah days—but you can't marry no quality lady if yo' has ladic lak dat one today cenne around de place. Yo' good name is bound to run down hill."

DR. COPELAND SAYS— SUN-BATH SHOULD BE MADE A DAILY RITUAL

Exposure to Sunshine Is Good for Young and Old.
Says Dr. Copeland, Telling Mothers It is a Chief Factor in Welfare of Infants.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOT long ago I saw an eight-months old baby. It had a great big head, was large for its age, had big, questioning eyes, and in many ways was an attractive youngster.

But the child was "peaked." It was pale, almost waxen in appearance. It was listless, sitting quietly in its chair, almost the only movement being in those great eyes.

It isn't normal for an infant to be "too good." Restlessness, eagerness, perpetual motion—these are normal symptoms. Their absence creates the suspicion that all is not well with the baby.

On many occasions I have told you how important an adjunct to the household are the scales. They are needed to measure the physical progress of the baby. Steady increase of weight is the surest sign of good health.

But of course increase of weight is only one sign of health. Indeed, it may give a false sense of security. Unless the other evidences of vigor and health are present, the fat of the baby is not a good sign at all.

There are two factors that, more than all others, determine the welfare of an infant: The inclusion in the food of the essential vitamins and daily exposure to sunshine or its equivalent, the modern ultra-violet light.

Even though a young mother does not know the difference between vitamin C and a side of sole leather, if she will give her baby cod liver oil, orange or tomato juice, and plenty of sunlight, the youngster is almost sure to thrive. Everybody knows the baby must have milk and fresh air. But the three things I have mentioned are overlooked all too frequently in the homes of America.

Nobody can afford to forget that the sun rules the world. No wonder there are tribes that worship the sun. Sunlight has such a vital part in human welfare that the orb of day deserves credit it not adoration.

In the polar regions, where there are many months of darkness or semidarkness, travelers and the natives, as well, bleach out during the long winter. They become anemic, weak and wasted.

No matter how strong you may be, you need exposure to light. If this is true of the huskies, what can be said of tiny babies? They must have sunlight if they are to grow.

THEATRES

MUTT AND JEFF

The perennial question of domestic infelicity and its attendant squalls and unfortunate denouement seems to have been thoroughly and decisively settled in the brand new concoction of fun, laughter, merriment, screams and surprises, which is to be presented in the Grand Theatre, Circleville, for one performance only, on Thursday night, Oct. 24th. And who should be the ones to solve this much-mooted and troublesome problem than our old and beloved friends Mutt and Jeff? As it is probably universally well-known, Mutt has been a married man for these many years. Not so with little Jeff. It was only lately that he betook to himself the burden and uncertainty of supporting a helpmate. Jeff's martial plunge from all accounts has been rather blessed, he having found a sweet and adorable creature to share his lot and tolerate his diminutive stature and placid nature. Mutt has not been so fortunate and it has remained for the "shortened" of the world-renowned team to show him the path to happiness and contentment. The result of Jeff's advice, suggestions and inventive resourcefulness forms the basis of a plot certain to add new lustre to their popularity and furnish additional gaiety to a universe sadly in need of sunshine and bliss. Twenty-five original musical numbers, novelties and a cast of unusual strength and competency provide an additional incentive to those who have found the pair their milestone toward real enjoyment and pleasure.

"CANARY MURDER"

The perfect figure and superb dancing grace which brought Louise Brooks fame on the stage and the opportunity for a screen career, was responsible, in a large measure, for her selection to play the role of "The Canary" in Paramount's "The Canary Murder Case," which will be at the Clifton Wednesday and Thursday. S. S. Van Dine, mysterious author of this best selling detective story, describes Margaret Odell, "The Canary," as "the most beautiful, the most tantalizing and the most expensive plaything basking in the glow of Broadway's midnight sun."

In "The Canary Murder Case," Miss Brooks is the featured figure in a gorgeous stage presentation which includes a chorus of 70 girls. In addition to unusual demands upon acting skill, the role also required that its portrayer display a figure which easily put in the shadows those of 70 of the most beautiful girls the casting department of the Paramount studios in Hollywood could assemble.

"THE GODLESS GIRL"
After weeks of consideration, Cecil B. De Mille chose Lina Basquette for the season's outstanding screen role—that of "The Godless Girl" in his latest melodrama of the same name, a dialogue and sound production which will be on view at the Met theatre on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday next.

The selection of Miss Basquette followed one of the most exhaustive searches for a particular feminine type. The role of "The Godless Girl" was most exacting, for as the central figure of Jeanie Macpherson's dramatic story, Miss Basquette was called upon for every type of scene, from comedy to emotional drama.

Beginning her career as a child actress, Miss Basquette appeared for two seasons as premiere danseuse of Ziegfeld's "Follies." Her youthful charm and bodily grace paved the way for a successful career in pictures, which was hardly well started before she won this conspicuous opportunity with De Mille. She recently appeared opposite Richard Barthelmess in "The Noose," and with Adolphe Menjou in "The Serenade."

"The Godless Girl" was written by Jeanie Macpherson, who also adapted "The Ten Commandments" to the screen. The cast includes, besides Lina Basquette, Marie Prevost, George Duryea, Noah E. Eddie Quilan, Kate Price and a Paye.

Blue Blood And Red

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Eddie Regan, once a member of a New York gang, has broken away and gone to Virginia, where he befriends Penfold Paradine, who dies and leaves all his possessions to Eddie. Eddie had been in love with Bernice Veressi, "gang girl," but all thought of her is lost when he meets and falls in love with Marian Thorndike. Marian is engaged to Tom Freeman. Freeman and Eddie dislike each other, and Eddie, discouraged, goes to Richmond, where he meets Mike Arno, a former member of the gang, who tries to persuade him to return to New York and Bernice. Eddie refuses and returns to his farm. He goes to dinner at the Thorndike home, and Mr. Thorndike questions him as to his past. Bernice Veressi comes to Eddie's home and informs him she has come to stay. He tells her it is impossible, and she agrees to leave. He is escorting her back to the village when he comes face to face with Marian and her father.

Now Go On with the Story

CHAPTER XLII.

"If you were a friend of mine," he reminded her, "you'd let me work out my problems in my own way. It's a lot easier for you to be a sweetheart than it is to be a friend, isn't it?"

"I suppose so," Bernice admitted. "I'm trying to forget for a minute that I love you and look at it like a friend. I am your kind of a girl—even if you don't know it now. You're my kind of a man. We speak the same kind of language. What do I care whether we marry or not? I could make you happy and you could make me happy. Do you think I'm crazy?"

"I think you're mistaken, that's all."

"To me it's as plain as day that you are the mistaken one."

"You're in trouble but you don't know it. I'm not going to run out on you—I'm going to stick around and see what I can do even if it does hurt your feelings a little bit."

"I suppose you're going to explain all that to the people in the hotel."

Bernice shrugged her shoulders in her slightly scornful manner.

"At the hotel I'll say I'm just taking a vacation in the country. Maybe I can hire a car and drive around in the afternoons."

"How long do you expect to keep this up?"

Again she shrugged.

"Well, one or the other of us finds out the truth, the real truth."

Eddie knew with all his heart that he could tell her the entire truth then; that she could say forever, but his love was irrevocably Marian Thorndike's.

There was nothing more he could say, nothing more he could do.

Returning home he was filled with dismal forebodings and the black face of old Tobe, too, was somber with deep intuitive misgivings.

He went into the house and sat motionless a long time trying to solve the most difficult problem his life had so far encountered.

It was characteristic of the old

Negro that he asked no questions of Eddie. Silently he placed the dinner on the broad mahogany table, and lit the candles in their silver sticks.

Sitting alone in the spacious dining room at the board large enough to accommodate a whole family, Eddie looked at the empty chairs beside him and shook his head. Somewhere there was a waste, a loss—the whole house with its deserted rooms seemed to yearn for the tenancy of a living, a family life.

The food before Eddie was scarcely touched. The strange feeling came over him that he was only in temporary possession of the whole establishment. Despite his objections to everything that Bernice Veressi had said—his repudiation of all she represented—a shadowy doubt began to grow in his mind as to his position. Was it possible, after all, that he was out of place here?

Maybe she was right—maybe it was hopeless to rebuild his life in correspondence with the lives of these people down here. Their viewpoint, traditions, customs, that his neighbors had been absorbing from birth—tricks of thought and conduct that no outsider, perhaps could ever quite master.

It was easy, natural, for him to look at life with New York's eyes, but everybody around him would have a different slant at things.

Even Marian—were their viewpoints, really, at all similar? Even if she married him—the odds were against him—would they be happy after the first thrills were off?

Bernice had said it would be a prolonged battle with Marian trying to make him over into her idea of what a man should be.

The sudden thought came to Eddie that, in fact, Marian had already attempted something of the kind. She had spoken of her disapproval of his ambition, and she had likened him only to an illiterate laborer.

Somewhere she sensed a lack of worth in him, but she had not been able to point out any specific nat-

of progress. Merely, she had expressed dissatisfaction, had made him skeptical of himself.

There was no solution for that sort of thing. It wouldn't get any place. Had not this been, already, the sowing of the first seeds of unhappiness? What sort of harvest could they expect to reap?

Tobe, with his lugubrious face, came into the room and began removing dishes from the table. Somehow, it seemed to Eddie, there was a stubborn silence about the old negro that he was akin to sullenness. He had a feeling that Tobe, too, was beginning to disapprove of him. Even an old black man, unable to read or write, was able to sense something basically wrong... was able to detect the cord of disharmony that Bernice Veressi had struck.

"What's the matter with you, Tobe?" Eddie demanded, impatiently.

"Don't, suh."

"Don't hand me that—you are sulking. What's on your mind?"

Tobe paused, stood awkwardly with a plate in his hand.

"Ah jes' feels unhappy today, suh. 'Tis de weathah, mebbe. Storm clouds banking up in the west."

"You're not worrying about the weather," Eddie said, despondently. "What's the matter with that young lady who came here to see me? Why didn't you like her?"

"Ah ain't sed nary word agin her."

"Your face is a foot long! A person would think I had been getting away with murder or something around this house—from the way you're acting, I couldn't help it, could I?"

Eddie heard his own voice rising almost in anger. Strange... "I tell you I couldn't help it!"

The black face seemed incapable of any changing expression.

"Tain't none of my business, suh."

"As long as I stay here and you keep working for me anything that happens around here concerns you—and don't you forget it! I won't have you blaming me for things I can't help."

"Ah don't blame you, suh."

"What's the matter with you then?"

The old, yellowed eyes rolled slightly. "Whut kin Ah say, suh? Ah jes' an old Nigger. From de time I was a little boy Ah ain't knowed no othah home, I been hoping, Mistah Regan, dat yo would git yo'self married and set de town down. Yo' kin count on me for de rest of mah days—but you can't marry no quality lady if yo' has ladies lak dat one today coming around de place. Yo' good name is bound to run down hill."

Purest English
The question as to where the purest English is spoken is a matter of opinion. Some authorities on languages say that as pure English as one can hear is spoken at Trinity college, Dublin.

Call for One's Best
Play your hand, and play it to the finish, for, as Josh Billings said: "As in the game of cards, so in the game of life; we must play what is dealt us, and the glory consists not so much in winning as in playing a poor hand well."—Grit.

Easy to Be Critical
The habit of criticism grows upon us, because criticism is the easiest thing in the world. It does not take a thimbleful of brains to find fault, and the biggest rascal in the world can find fault with the greatest man. In the world, we flatter ourselves that criticism is a sign of superior intelligence. It is not. It is usually a sign of bad manners, of lack of self-restraint, and of an entire ignorance of psychology.—Dr. Frank Crane.

Prove Yourself
Don't blame a man because he cannot see in you what you see in yourself. Get a hustle on and show him that he has passed up a good thing.—American Magazine.

Quick, the Broom!
The exercise you get from sweeping is just as good a circulation stimulator as a beauty treatment, and lots cheaper.—Farm and Fire.

Safe as a Church
It is, we maintain, an excellent idea to go to church on Sunday. Quite aside from the benefit to your own morals, and the duty which you owe your Maker, and such considerations, we state confidently that a church has hardly been known to hit a telegraph pole and turn turtle.—Farm Journal.

And Profit Thereby
"Go see the world, my son," an old fellow is reported as once saying to his heir, "and see with what little sense it is governed."—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

SUN-BATH SHOULD BE MADE A DAILY RITUAL

Exposure to Sunshine Is Good for Young and Old. Says Dr. Copeland, Telling Mothers It is a Chief Factor in Welfare of Infants.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOT long ago I saw an eight-months old baby. It had a great big head, was large for its age, had big, questioning eyes, and in many ways was an attractive youngster.

But the child was "peaked." It was pale, almost waxen in appearance. It was listless, sitting quietly in its chair, almost the only movement being in those great eyes.

It isn't normal for an infant to be "too good." Restlessness, eagerness, perpetual motion—these are normal symptoms. Their absence creates the suspicion that all is not well with the baby.

On many occasions I have told you how important an adjunct to the household are the scales. They are needed to measure the physical progress of the baby. Steady increase of weight is the surest sign of good health.

But of course increase of weight is only one sign of health. Indeed, it may give a false sense of security. Unless the other evidences of vigor and health are present, the fat of the baby is not a good sign at all.

There are two factors that, more than all others, determine the welfare of an infant: The inclusion in the food of the essential vitamins and daily exposure to sunshine or its equivalent, the modern ultra-violet light.

Even though a young mother does not know the difference between vitamin C and a side of sole leather, if she will give her baby cod liver oil, orange or tomato juice, and plenty of sunlight, the youngster is almost sure to thrive. Everybody knows the baby must have milk and fresh air. But the three things I have mentioned are overlooked all too frequently in the homes of America.

Nobody can afford to forget that the sun rules the world. No wonder there are tribes that worship the sun. Sunlight has such a vital part in human welfare that the orb of day deserves credit if not adoration.

In the polar regions, where there are many months of darkness or semi-darkness, travelers and the natives, as well, bleach out during the long winter. They become anemic, weak and wasted.

THEATRES

MUTT AND JEFF

The perennial question of domestic infelicity and its attendant squalls and unfortunate denouement seems to have been thoroughly and decisively settled in the brand new concoction of fun, laughter, merriment, screams and surprises, which is to be presented in the Grand Theatre, Circleville, for one performance only, on Thursday night, Oct. 24th. And who should be the ones to solve this much-mooted and troublesome problem than our old and beloved friends Mutt and Jeff! As it is probably universally well-known, Mutt has been a married man for these many years. Not so with little Jeff. It was only lately that he betook to himself the burden and uncertainty of supporting a helpmate. Jeff's martial plunge from all accounts has been rather blessed, he having found a sweet and adorable creature to share his lot and tolerate his diminutive stature and placid nature. Mutt has not been so fortunate and it has remained for the "shortened" of the world-renowned team to show him the path to happiness and contentment. The result of Jeff's advice, suggestions and inventive resourcefulness forms the basis of a plot certain to add new lustre to their popularity and furnish additional gaiety to a universe sadly in need of sunshine and bliss. Twenty-five original musical numbers, novelties and a cast of unusual strength and competency provide an additional incentive to those who have found the pair their milestone toward real enjoyment and pleasure.

"CANARY MURDER"

The perfect figure and superb dancing grace which brought Louise Brooks fame on the stage and the opportunity for a screen career, was responsible, in a large measure, for her selection to play the role of "The Canary" in Paramount's "The Canary Murder Case," which will be at the Clifton Wednesday and Thursday.

S. S. Van Dine, mysterious author of this best selling detective story, describes Margaret Odell, "The Canary," as "the most beautiful, the most tantalizing and the most expensive plaything basking in the glow of Broadway's midnight sun."

In "The Canary Murder Case," Miss Brooks is the featured figure in a gorgeous stage presentation which includes a chorus of 70 girls. In addition to unusual demands upon acting skill, the role also required that its portrayal display a figure which easily put in the shadows those of 70 of the most beautiful girls the casting department of the Paramount studios in Hollywood could assemble.

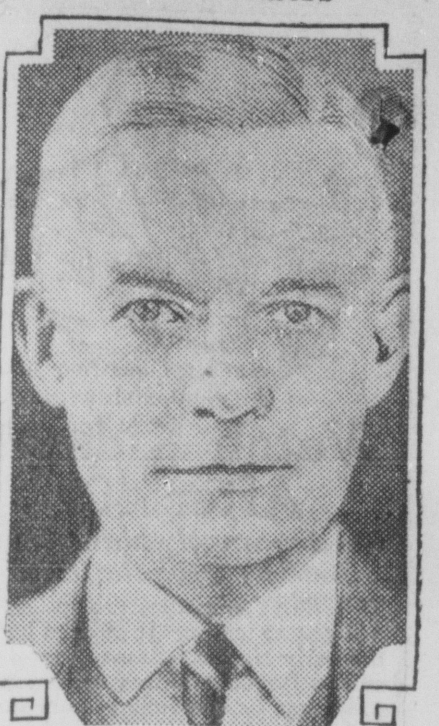

"THE GODLESS GIRL"

After weeks of consideration, Cecil B. De Mille chose Lina Basquette for the season's outstanding screen role—that of "The Godless Girl" in his latest melodrama of the same name, a dialogue and sound production which will be on view at the Met theatre on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday next.

The selection of Miss Basquette followed one of the most exhaustive searches for a particular feminine type. The role of "The Godless Girl" was most exacting, for as the central figure of Jeanie Macpherson's dramatic story, Miss Basquette was called upon for every type of scene, from comedy to emotional drama.

Beginning her career as a child actress, Miss Basquette appeared

Mr. Dearborn joined Warren Brothers Company in 1906 and he has been with the firm ever since, first as Treasurer and then as President.

The success of the company under Mr. Dearborn's presidency has been marvelous. Even Japanese cities have asked its experts to show how to build the best streets.

for two seasons as premiere danseuse of Ziegfeld's "Follies." Her youthful charm and bodily grace paved the way for a successful career in pictures, which was hardly well started before she won this conspicuous opportunity with De Mille. She recently appeared opposite Richard Barthelmess in "The Noose," and with Adolphe Menjou in "The Serenade."

"The Godless Girl" was written by Jeanie Macpherson, who also adapted "The Ten Commandments" and "The King of Kings," to the screen. The cast includes, besides Lina Basquette, Marie Prevost, George Duryea, Noah F. Eddie Quillan, Kate Price and Lia Faye.

LIGHT LINES HOLD UP DURING SHOW

Let there be light! And there was light—every second of the grand and glorious Pumpkin show last week.

In years gone by the show sometimes suffered from lack of light for a moment or two, due chiefly to an overload on the Ohio Utilities Co. lines.

Manager C. T. Gilmore took extra precautions this year, however, and the entire system functioned perfectly, with nary a slip or a dark moment.

Local Singers To Compete Thursday Over Station WAIU

Mrs. Rolland Heiskell and her two voice pupils, Mrs. Kenneth Bell and Mr. Tom Drum, and Mrs. James P. Moffitt will attend a reception Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Capital University, Columbus. Following the reception, Mr. Drum and Mrs. Bell will sing over station WAIU at Columbus.

At this time 25 additional singers, successful contestants in the recent Atwater Kent radio audition will broadcast. Circleville listeners who are interested in this event, are invited to tune it.

A gala night for Ohio Music lovers is in store. The voices of the Southern Ohio participants in the audition will go on the air at six o'clock to a statewide audience. The young men and young women, scoring highest honors in this contest will represent the state at the District Audition held in Chicago next month.

Ohio listeners may play a deciding part in the selection of the state's winners, since the votes of the radio audience will count 60 points in selection of the victors, against 40 points allowed the jury of musical authorities who will co-operate in judging. All the contestants are between the ages of 18 and 25 years and have never been professional singers.

Mr. Ellis Snyder, Head of Vocal Department of the Capital University and state chairman of the Atwater Kent Foundation Audition committee, is enthusiastic about this year's singers.

Everything possible has been done to encourage the singers to take the opportunity offered to share in the awards of $25,000 in cash, and ten musical scholarships.
